

Belgian Professor Johan D'Haene teaches as a visiting professor at Huhezi

Dec 03, 2008

For a week, Belgian professor Johan D'Haene has been in Eskoriatza, where he has taught classes at Huhezi, the School of Humanities and Sciences of Education of Mondragon University. Mr D'Haene is a professor at the University of Howest, more specifically at the School of Communication, where he teaches photography, design and philosophy.

During his stay in Eskoriatza, Professor D'Haene has taught three classes in English to students in 1st, 2nd and 4th year of Audiovisual Communication, on the importance of images in the design of information. In addition, he took part in a series of working lunches with various teachers of Audiovisual Communication, and met with the Department of Information and Communication, where he reported on the curriculum of studies of Communication at Howest University, the system of practicum, areas of research and its international strategy.

Huhezi is making great efforts to promote international exchanges of both students and teachers. The visit by Johan D'Haene is part of that program.
