

Mondragon University Reception of International Students

Sep 27, 2013

Like a special Tower of Babel where every language, every country and every person finds their own niche. For a few hours, the Arrasate campus of Mondragon Unibertsitatea Polytechnic College became a crossroads of languages and new faces who introduced themselves to begin the educational period that starts this year. Beyond each individual's language, English set the pace of the event, as well as of the conversations.

And a total of 105 foreign students from Mondragon Unibertsitatea took part yesterday in the reception and welcome event that the university organised for them and which aims to help the students discover this university and its extensive international experience that began 45 years ago. It also aimed to help the students get to know each other so they can interact during their time at the Basque university.

These 105 students are distributed across the four faculties that make up Mondragon Unibertsitatea and they are with us through programmes such as ERASMUS or LAMENITEC, as well as through other programmes in countries outside the European Union.

The countries of origin of these students are as diverse as Latvia, the Netherlands, Finland, Mexico, Hungary, Germany, Canada, Belgium, Turkey, Colombia, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Poland, Andorra, Japan, Portugal, France, Italy, Romania, China, Mexico, Peru and Venezuela.
